2. Our Story

Commenhers' pillars on a simple belief: textile waste can be given a second life while creating meaningful opportunities for the community. What started as a project has grown into a sustainability company that helps organisations transform discarded materials into practical, purposeful products for many purposes.

Through upcycling, we turn any unconventional textile materials into items such as bags, pouches, sleeves, gifts, and lifestyle products suitable for any purpose, all crafted with care by our network of local makers and beneficiaries.

Join us in making sustainability more practical, inclusive, and meaningful for everyone.

Title: Supporting Organisations in their Sustainable Journey

Body: Commenhers create greater impact through helping businesses, schools, government agencies, retailers, and brands reduce their waste and carbon footprint through upcycling. By turning their unused materials into bags, pouches, sleeves, corporate gifts, and lifestyle products, we help organisations create visible and useful outcomes from their sustainability efforts. Be it workshops or gifting, Commenhers puts corporate goals first.

About Us Page

1. About Commenhers

Replace with this “At the heart of Commenhers is a belief that waste still has value. Every material we work with carries a story, and we want to give them a second life through thoughtful design and craftsmanship. By transforming discarded textiles into useful products, we help organisations reduce waste, lower their environmental impact, and create visible outcomes from their sustainability efforts.

Beyond environmental impact, Commenhers is also built on community. Our products are made with the support of local makers. Through upcycling, we create opportunities for them to apply their sewing and crafting skills while contributing to a more circular economy.

We stand for sustainability that is practical, inclusive, and people-centred. To us, upcycling is more than turning old materials into new products. It is about rethinking waste, supporting communities, and helping organisations create impact that can be seen, felt, and used.”

2. Our Team

Body: Yanee’s journey began with a simple belief: waste can still hold value. Yanee and the team started by sewing products themselves, before expanding to work with local makers, including housewives, single mothers, seniors, and other beneficiaries. Through Commenhers, she wanted to make upcycling practical and accessible while creating meaningful income opportunities for the community.

Today, Commenhers continues to carry that same purpose, they still aim to give discarded textiles a second life, help organisations reduce waste, and build a more inclusive circular economy where sustainability supports both people and the planet.
